

READ THE ENTIRE BIBLE FOR THE FIRST TIME

365 Day Plan

A person can read thru the entire Bible in 72-76 hours. Most audio Bibles are in this range. This means that a person, reading at a moderate rate, can read thru the Bible in a year by reading less than 13 minutes a day!

We've developed this first time thru the Bible reading plan to avoid the common pitfall of getting bogged down in the details before obtaining a good basic overall understanding of the whole of scripture. With that in mind, we'll read the books in a certain order. To begin, we suggest getting four bookmarks and placing them at the beginning of Genesis, Psalms, Proverbs, and at Luke. We'll then divide each day's reading into two parts, consisting of a reading from the OT and the NT. Every other day, we'll begin with a selection from either the Psalms or Proverbs (kind of like an appetizer), then continue to our Old and New Testament reading.

Entire Bible Reading Plan

We've labeled the readings by reading number, so you can start any day of the year. You'll notice some days do not have a reading listed for Psalms or Proverbs. There are 181 chapters in the two books combined, so reading one chapter a day will take six months. Except for Psalms 119, I prefer to read a chapter in its entirety every other day. Others may prefer reading half the chapter one day and the other half the next. Either way, we'll finish in about the same time.

If you don't finish a reading or miss a day (or two) and fall behind, just continue where you left off. Be cautious about trying to do too much to catch up. As I stated before, I've never finished at exactly one year. I think the one year plan helps with discipline and keeping us on course, but sometimes we miss and at other times, God may want to deal with us for two or three days on a single reading. I've sometimes repeated a reading several days in a row when felt led. The most important thing is to be consistent. Try to set aside a certain time and place for your readings. Before long, you'll find yourself craving the Word.

How to Read the Bible

Here's a few suggestions to help you get more out of your study time.

I'll repeat this principle from our Bible Interpretation since it's so important. The Word of God should be approached very carefully, with humility and much prayer.

Read Consistently - Just as our bodies need daily meals to keep us physically healthy, we also need daily feeding of the Word of God to keep us spiritually healthy. We recommend at least 15 minutes daily.

Set a Regular Reading Time and Place - The best way to maintain consistency is to commit to reading at a set time and place each day. I think most folks find first thing in the morning to be the best time, before the busy activities of the day kick in. I usually read 20-30 minutes in the morning, then work on various studies in the evenings. You may find a different schedule works better for you, but the important thing is to be consistent.

Read the Bible Experientially - That is, put yourself into the story. The Bible contains great principles, inspiration and guidance on how to live. Basic human nature has not changed since the days in which the Scriptures were written, so they contain messages for us today.

Read the Bible Thoughtfully - Don't rush through your reading. Take time to meditate on what the Scriptures are saying.

Read the Bible Devotionally - Read it with your heart as well as your head. Don't limit yourself to an intellectual understanding, but ask the Holy Spirit for the spiritual aspect. This will provide that spiritual inspiration that all Christians need in their daily life.

Keep a pencil and paper handy. Expect a work from God. It's a good idea to write out your answers and findings based upon the "Basic Questions to Ask" and "What to Look For" sections of the Bible Interpretation page. It's also interesting to compare your observations with others, and even with your notes from the previous time you read this particular passage.
